13. Why is it important to use local inputs?

- a) Limits biodiversity
- b) Promotes chemical use
- c) Reduces environmental impact
- d) Increases transportation costs

Correct Answer: c) Reduces environmental impact

Explanation: Using locally sourced inputs, such as soil amendments and organic fertilizers, minimizes transportation-related emissions and supports local economies. This practice contributes to sustainability by reducing the carbon footprint associated with long-distance shipping. Additionally, local inputs often align better with regional growing conditions, leading to healthier plants and potentially lower costs.

14. What is the purpose of rainwater harvesting?

- a) Promotes water waste
- b) Reduces water costs
- c) Increases water bills
- d) Limits irrigation options

Correct Answer: b) Reduces water costs

Explanation: Rainwater harvesting involves collecting and storing rainwater for irrigation, which can significantly reduce water costs for cannabis growers. This sustainable practice helps to conserve natural resources and minimizes reliance on municipal water supplies. By utilizing rainwater, growers can lower their operational expenses and contribute to a more sustainable approach to water management.

15. Which material is best for biodegradable pots?

- a) Plastic containers
- b) Coconut coir
- c) Styrofoam cups
- d) Glass jars

Correct Answer: b) Coconut coir

Explanation: Coconut coir is a sustainable, biodegradable material used for planting pots. Unlike plastic or Styrofoam, which contribute to long-term environmental pollution, coconut coir breaks down naturally, enriching the soil as it decomposes. This choice supports sustainable practices in cannabis horticulture while reducing waste and potentially lowering costs associated with disposal.

16. What is a key principle of sustainable agriculture?

- a) High chemical use
- b) Soil degradation
- c) Monoculture
- d) Resource conservation

Explanation: Resource conservation is a fundamental principle of sustainable agriculture, emphasizing the efficient use of natural resources to maintain environmental health. Practices that conserve water, soil, and energy contribute to the long-term viability of agricultural systems. By adopting resource-conserving methods, cannabis horticulturists can enhance sustainability while also improving economic outcomes.

17. What type of fertilizer is most sustainable?

- a) Chemical fertilizers
- b) Non-renewable fertilizers
- c) Synthetic fertilizers
- d) Organic fertilizers

Correct Answer: d) Organic fertilizers

Explanation: Organic fertilizers are derived from natural sources and improve soil health without the negative environmental impacts associated with synthetic options. They promote beneficial microbial activity, enhance nutrient availability, and reduce the risk of chemical runoff into waterways. By using organic fertilizers, cannabis growers can achieve sustainability while often benefiting from cost savings in the long term.

18. How does mulching help cannabis plants?

- a) Increases evaporation
- b) Promotes soil erosion
- c) Requires frequent watering
- d) Suppresses weeds

Correct Answer: d) Suppresses weeds

Explanation: Mulching involves applying a layer of organic or inorganic material on the soil surface to suppress weed growth and maintain soil moisture. This practice reduces the need for chemical herbicides and helps retain water, contributing to sustainability in cannabis cultivation. By minimizing weed competition, growers can enhance plant health and reduce labor costs associated with weeding.

19. What is the advantage of using biopesticides?

- a) Requires extensive application
- b) Increases chemical residues
- c) Promotes environmental harm
- d) Reduces pest resistance
